29 Senior Citizens Graduate

Twenty-nine persons representing the Ingleside and Fox Lake, and Antioch Chapters of the American Association of Retired Persons, successfully completed their four-week Defensive Driving Courses.

The last sessions were conducted by Harold W. Lindberg and John L. Horan.

Certificates of graduation were distributed to the successful candidates Tuesday when they met in the community room of the Antioch Savings and Loan Association.

The annual Christmas party for the Antioch AARP Chapter will be Tuesday, Dec. 8, in the Antioch Savings and Loan Association community room.

Catering service will be provided by LaVergne Catering Service of Silver Lake.

Tickets for the party are $2. The Antioch Area Chapter still meets every Tuesday at 12:30 p.m.

Those having reached the age of 55 in the senior citizen class should feel free to attend any meeting as a guest. The membership at this date has reached over 196, and a number of members come from the immediate Antioch area and across the state line from Wisconsin.

Teachers' Contract Approved By Board

The Antioch High School Board of Education has approved the 1970-71 contract agreement with the High School Education Association, with benefits retroactive to Aug. 31, the first day of school for the fall term.

A dispute between the teachers and the school board led to the first strike in the history of the Antioch High School District.

The board also approved an amnesty agreement which provides that neither side will permit reprisals because of the walkout.

And the 1970-71 salary plan will become part of the board's policy, rules and regulations.

Board members approved completion of the district's financial statement by office personnel, and it will be published in conformance with school law.

Board president William Brook appointed William E. Petty and Robert Lindblad to join with the business office in compiling an in-depth review of the 1970-71 budget.

All receipts and expenditures will be reviewed to determine the district's current financial status. Dr. Albert Bucar will be chairman, and Bette Meyer and Robert Denman will be members of a curriculum committee. Of immediate concern is revision of daily schedules and use of the new facilities.

A 25-minute study period will be eliminated from the noon hour. School will recess at 3:15 instead of 3:40 p.m., school officials said.

The study period was found to be ineffective and a waste of time, school official pointed out, thus shortening the school day by 25 minutes.

A special meeting of the board was held Wednesday night with discussion centering on school finance, the 1969-70 audit and the 1970-71 budget.

Other items given attention by the board was the planning and development of building utilization, curriculum, and daily schedule when the addition is complete.

Roosevelt To Offer Business Courses

Roosevelt University has been offering undergraduate courses in business administration for a number of years at Great Lakes, Fort Sheridan and Waukegan; now graduate courses, too, will be available in a Lake County location.

State Bank Sells '71 Illinois Auto Plates

Over-the-counter sales of 1971 motor vehicle license plates for vehicles licensed on a calendar year basis began Tuesday at the State Bank of Antioch.

Tuesday also was the first date on which the 1971 plates may legally be displayed on vehicles, Secretary of State John Lewis, said.

The deadline for having the plates on the vehicles is midnight Monday, Feb. 15.

The banks will accept only renewal applications for passenger cars, and the applications must be accompanied by the 1970 identification cards or, if the cards have been lost, the certificates of title. At their discretion, the banks may choose to charge an additional fee, not to exceed $1 for the service to offset the cost of a $6,800 validating machine each has had to purchase. The banks will also set their own hours.

At all locations, banks and Secretary of State's outlets, applicants will be given assistance in filling out applications, their applications will be validated and the plates issued.

Plates may be purchased during regular banking hours. Special windows are set aside to handle the sales, William E. Brook, president, said.

Support The Chamber

Antioch is in the midst of a growth, but its expansion cannot be furthered without the help of its business and industrial community and residents.

Through the Chamber of Commerce, Antioch can grow to bring in more tax dollars through real estate, sales and gasoline taxes to help our village government and schools and to improve our streets and lighting system.

The Chamber is in the forefront always seeking ways to bring the end results for its membership and the community.

Antioch cannot stand still, and now is the time for wise planning and definite action. To keep pace with the growing community and complications of our modern society, we must have a growing Chamber of Commerce.

The members of this organization can be effective in participating wholeheartedly in the annual membership drive. For a successful campaign, all members must take part.

Join the Chamber in selling our town. With an increased membership the Chamber can provide the punch it needs to carry out effective programs now and in the future.

Won't you help in recruiting more members?

Fire Safety

Fires already have claimed the lives of seven persons in Lake County.

The Lake County Safety Commission says the principal danger spot is in the homes. It is these fires, many caused by over-heated or defective stoves and furnaces, and oil stove explosions that point up the need for greater fire prevention in the homes.

The Safety Commission says:

Ninety per cent of our fires are preventable.

Every week should be fire prevention week.

Practically all home fires can be prevented by following simple rules of not smoking in bed, in the attic, closets and garage, and keeping matches out of the hands of children.

The commission also points out that it is wise and safe to put out smokes and matches before they are discarded. Be sure they are cold!

Trash and rubbish should be cleaned out daily particularly in the basement, attic and closets. Burn safely and never on windy days.

Another suggestion is never use kerosene to start a fire. Flash-backs and explosions kill and maim scores of people each year. And don't store gasoline, benzine, naptha on home premises.

Electric irons should always be disconnected before leaving them.

Never plug blown electric fuses with pennies nor replace with oversize fuses.

These safe ideas by the commission will help to make the holidays happier and your life the year around.

What about it?

"The Little Drummer Boy" will be shown again this year, Wednesday, Dec. 16, at 6:30 p.m. over the NBC-TV network. The half-hour animated Christmas special, presented by America's natural gas industry and sponsored locally by Northern Illinois Gas Company, features the voices of The Vienna Boys Choir, Jose Ferrer, and Greer Garson as narrator.

When driving near a school or playground use an extra measure of caution. It's the motorist's responsibility to watch out for playing children who may temporarily forget the rules of traffic safety.

Bicycle riding can be dangerous for cyclists who don't know, or obey the law. Bicyclists enjoy the same privileges as motor vehicles, but they are likewise subject to the same basic traffic rules and regulations.

Abbott Lab Gives CLC 47 Volumes

In a brief ceremony at the College of Lake County Learning Resource Center on Oct. 27, Abbott Laboratories presented to the College 47 selected volumes from the Arno Press-New York Times series, "The American Negro, His History and Literature." Fred Armitage, Manager of Corporate Training and Education of Abbott and Jerry Sweda, Editor of Abbott Employee Publications, indicated that the series is a library of original documents and primary source materials that will be of special interest to students of black history and literature and a valuable asset to the College.

Walter Kroll and Herbert Wesner, Trustees; Dr. Richard Erzen, President; Dr. R. Ernest Dear, Dean of Instruction; Dr. S. Robert Hookstra, Administrative Assistant to the President; Fred Patterson, Chairman of the Division of Social Sciences; and Mrs. Ann Marie Allison, Acting Director of Learning Resources accepted the books and participated in the ceremony.

Armitage in presenting the books, to F. James Lumber,

Chairman of the Board of Trustees, stated, "Abbott Laboratories takes pleasure in presenting a portion of this important series to the College of Lake County library. Abbott hopes that these books will serve as a useful reference material on a timely current area of interest in education today."

Patterson noted that all students, black and white, can explore their common history together with fully documented educational tools such as this series. He further indicated that books of this type bring students closer to the people and make students more aware of the ideas, emotions, and experiences of past generations.

Dr. Dear was impressed with the series which he described as a stimulating and powerful aid in assisting the College in educating students to the contributions of Afro-Americans to American history. He further indicated "Were the volumes originals they would be shelved in closed stacks, but the acquisition of the reproductions provides the students at the College of Lake County ready access to relevant primary source material available in open stacks at the Learning Resource Center. The College appreciates the acquisition of this valuable contribution from Abbott Laboratories."

McClory: Guidelines A 'Political Bombshell'

The new director of the Office of Education, Terrell H. Bell, dropped a political bombshell recently when he announced new "guidelines" affecting distribution of Federal funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. These guidelines, billed as an "Advisory Statement," would require participation by local parents' committees in developing effective programs for administering the Federal education funds.

School Boards and Administrators have long sought the kind of local decision-making of which a Federal agency is incapable on a nationwide basis. Many of these local officials have charged that the failure thus far of Federal aid to education to fulfill its intended purpose of improving the quality of education must be laid at the doorstep of the Federal Bureaucracy.

The new guidelines are based largely on a study conducted at the Harvard Center of Educational Research which found that there is a direct relationship between parent participation and student achievement in our schools. Accordingly, the main purpose of the new guidelines is to translate this finding into benefits for the school children in the nation's 20,000 school districts—a purpose which would benefit public and private school children alike.

The importance of parental involvement has been accurately demonstrated in various Headstart and Follow Through programs. According to Presidential Advisor, Robert H. Finch, the lesson learned from those programs is that "high participation of parents and community people is a tremendous help—both in raising the quality of programs and increasing motivation of the children."

Enforcement of the guidelines will probably be left primarily to the State Offices of Education, with the expectation that this will eliminate the need for Federal officials to cut off funds to those individual school districts which fail to set up parents' councils or other acceptable machinery for meeting the guideline requirements.

The NAACP, the National Urban League, the League of Women Voters, and other national organizations which have pressed for a decentralization of educational controls have joined in support of the establishment of such local parents' councils. Ultimate success of the new policy will depend largely on voluntary local support.

The idea is not without its detractors and critics. However, it would seem most logical to conclude that decisions made at the community level should give every assurance of receiving the maximum benefit from Federal education funds.

"Did you know?" asks Commerce magazine, "It took 60 years and 11 presidents before the federal government spent $1 billion in a single year. Now this prodigious feat is accomplished in just two days."

Pollution Research Grant Set

A grant of $25,000 for research in the field of environmental quality was announced today by William Kuhfuss, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, the state-wide Farm Bureau. The grant includes funds from FS Services, Inc., Country Life Insurance Company, and Country Mutual Insurance Company, all of whom are affiliates with Farm Bureau in Illinois, as well as a contribution by IAA.

The money will be made available to the Council on Environmental Quality of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. The Council, appointed by Orville G. Bentley, Dean of the College, takes a new approach to research on environmental problems. Task forces from various departments of the College of Agriculture, as well as researchers from other areas of the University and such state-supported research groups as the State Water Survey, the State Natural History Survey, and the State Geological Survey are combining their talents in an effort to gather a more complete body of facts more quickly.

The grant was made at this time to enable the council to begin work immediately on a study of the nitrate content of water in various areas of Illinois.

In announcing the grant, Kuhfuss declared, "The question being raised about the quality of our soil, air, and water are of even greater interest to farmers and rural residents than to the urban population. Farmers rely on clean air and water as well as other natural resources for their livelihood. Rural residents are vitally interested in adequate supplies of pure water."

Kuhfuss also praised the new task force approach to studying environmental problems. "It is essential that we make the most efficient use of the best minds and facilities we have available to us in order to achieve realistic solutions to many of the problems facing us," he said.

Kuhfuss lauded the participation by FS Services, Inc., a cooperative farm supply organization affiliated with Farm Bureau in Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, and the Country Companies Insurance companies in the project. "This not only demonstrates the interest of these companies in the welfare of rural Illinois," he pointed out, "but shows an aggressive leadership in grappling with the problems of the proper use of plant foods and farm chemicals, as well as the questions of health and insurance protection involved in this whole environmental quality area."

A chairman of the new Council on Environmental Quality is W. R. Boggess, head of the College of Agriculture's Department of Forestry. The Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station headed by Dr. G. W. Salisbury, is also deeply involved in the work of the council. Dr. R. J. Miller, assistant director of the Experiment Station, serves as coordinator of the council's activities.

ple who have contributed to the organization and development of the College. "It would be a difficult task to single out all the persons who should be honored, but certainly the list will represent those who were active in the establishment of a junior college for Lake County, those who worked to obtain voter support of several referendums, those who have contributed their financial and material resources; those who worked on career advisory committees, and those who aided in the establishing of the school's educational program," stated Dr. Erzen.

The movement to establish a two-year college for Lake County received its major impetus in mid-1960 and was culminated with the opening of a campus near Grayslake in the fall of 1969 with a first-year enrollment of 2,588 students. In the second year of operation, in September, 1970, 4,268 students registered for classes. The College of Lake County offers several types of educational programs including the two-year University Parallel, career, adult and continuing education, and developmental services.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

Why progress depends on understanding the source of all that is substantial and good will be explained at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Scriptural readings include these words from Psalms: "Oh Lord, have manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches. . . Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth."

An accompanying passage from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy reads: "Spiritual causation is the one question to be considered, for more than all others spiritual causation relates to human progress."

The Lesson-Sermon topic is "God the Only Cause and Creator." Everyone is invited to services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, BEACON HILL, Rte 173 and Harden, Antioch, Ill., at 11 a.m.

College Players To Give Greek Tragedy

"Despite its more than two thousand year history, Euripides' 'Trojan Women' remains as fresh as this morning's news dispatch," according to Frank Harnish, Director of the College of Lake County Theatre production of the Greek tragedy.

The play will be presented in the Brainerd Auditorium in Libertyville on Dec. 4, 5 and 6, with curtain time at 8:15 on Friday and Saturday and at 2:00 on Sunday afternoon. The Brainerd Auditorium is located on Route 176 just west of Milwaukee Avenue (Route 21) in Libertyville.

Harnish, instructor in Speech and Theatre at CLC, contends that the circumstances surrounding the play's original production in 415 B. C. are similar to those faced by this country in its current military action and by all countries in other than clearly defensive wars throughout the ages. When "The Trojan Women" was originally produced, it won for its author only a "second place" award at the Dionysian festival in the 91st Olympiad. That it won any award is a tribute to its excellence inasmuch as its presentation climaxed a ten year war between Athens and Sparta which bears striking resemblance to our own involvement in Viet Nam.

Educational Opportunities Are Increased

Ray Page, Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction, reports that educational opportunities for migrant children are increasing each year.

Superintendent Page reports that currently there are 33 projects in operation in school districts in the state and that $475,704 had been appropriated for this program. In 1969 $386,661 was appropriated to conduct 22 projects in school districts in 13 counties.

The program is for migrant children of parents who come to Illinois to work in agriculture or agriculture-related areas. A total of 3,278 migrant children participated in the 1969 projects. Three school districts conducted regular school year projects for approximately 600 students. These are children of families who have chosen to live in Illinois the year around. The remainder of the children were enrolled in summer school projects. However, the summer schedule begins in April and continues until about November.

Nearly 90 per cent of all the students were of Mexican-American descent, originating from the Rio Grande Valley in Texas. The remaining 10 per cent were comprised largely of Negroes and Caucasians from Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Kentucky and Missouri.

The Illinois migrant program includes projects at all levels. The figures show, however, that two out of every three students were in grades 1 through 6. The biggest problem is teaching the children English as a second language. In most cases the children become interpreters for their parents who cannot speak English.

In 1969, Page's office took a unique step by purchasing a mobile unit housing the latest commercially prepared materials as well as teacher-made materials. The mobile unit also includes equipment which can be borrowed by the local education agencies on a short term basis. Pio Caracheo, a Mexican, was hired to travel with the unit and work with both teachers and students as a consultant and teacher. Illinois was the first state to put migrant education on wheels and the project has been so successful that the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction is considering a second unit.

Bankers Okay Proposed New Constitution

The Illinois Bankers Association in action taken last week by its 30-man Council of Administration, has endorsed the proposed new state constitution, which will be voted upon in a December 15 referendum.

In a letter sent to the Association's 1,097 member banks, Fred W. Heitmann, Jr., IBA president, said: "The proposed new charter, if adopted will provide the State of Illinois with a modern governmental structure that will better serve all our citizens and greatly enhance the future progress of our state."

Heitmann, called upon the bankers to fulfill their responsibility both as citizens and as financial leaders in their communities by encouraging a "Yes" vote in the December 15 election.

nois was the first state to put migrant education on wheels and the project has been so successful that the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction is considering a second unit.

Superintendent Page said, "We feel many good things have been done for the migrant children educationally in the past four years; however, there are many things yet to be done to better prepare these children to meet the challenges of our society. In order for these people to compete socially and economically, they must first learn English as a second language; therefore, we will continue to have this as one of the primary objectives."

The migrant projects are funded by the Department of Title I, Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Four years ago, 1966, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act was amended to include funds for educating children of agricultural migrant workers. The first grant awarded to Illinois for these children was submitted in 1967 and amounted to $88,472.

Every age has made its particular contribution to the progress of mankind, and none of the modern day achievements would be possible were it not for the work of former ages.

Traveling Demands Tax U.S. Office

With the advent of the jumbo jet age, more and more Americans are discovering the world of foreign travel. In order to cope with this travel explosion and increased demand for passports, Secretary of State Rogers recently appointed a committee to determine how the Government can better serve Americans traveling abroad. He noted that six million Americans flew the Atlantic last year and that by 1979 there will be an estimated 24 million transatlantic travelers.

As a result of this travel explosion, the State Department's Passport Office and its ten agencies are faced with another season, even busier than the last, and the State Department has already put out its help-wanted sign.

Typists are needed to work from January to August and applications are being accepted now in order to complete the processing and background check prior to their appointment in January. Bi-Weekly salaries range up to $240, and applicants must pass U. S. Civil Service examinations.

These jobs will be of particular interest to night school students and housewives with clerical and typing skills who can work from 8:45 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. for this eight month period. For further details call or visit Mr. William Magee, Room 244-A, FOB, 291 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, from December 7 through 11, 1970. Telephone 353-7155.

Intensive care units are to be constructed at VA hospitals in Buffalo, Providence, Shreveport, Iowa City, Miami, and Fayetteville, Ark., at a cost of nearly $2 million, bringing the total number of such units to 93.

Rick Kubetz Speaker In Cook County

Lake County 4-H was honored to have one of its own members invited to speak at a 4-H workshop in neighboring Cook County, on Saturday, Nov. 7.

The president of the 4-H Junior Leader Organization of Lake County, Rick Kubetz, was the guest speaker at Cook County's Junior Leader Workshop, and talked on the subject of "Communications."

The speech fit in with the theme for the day, which was to prepare older 4-H members for becoming effective leaders in their prospective 4-H clubs and to assist the adult leaders in running the club.

Although Rick is relatively young to be making a guest appearance as a speaker he was invited to speak because of his knowledge and previous experience in the field of communications and leadership. He has been in the Junior Toastmasters Public Speaking Course and also attended conferences on leadership training. At the 1970 Illinois State Fair, he was one of the Master of Ceremonies for a contest involving short-skirt presentations by 4-H Clubs.

Rick's home town is Ingleside in western Lake County, and belongs to the Chain O' Lakes 4-H Club.

New Procedure Saves State $1.5 Million

State operating costs have been cut by nearly $1.5 million in Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's cost reduction program, according to Budget Director John W. McCarter Jr. Emphasizing that the reductions are the result of permanent changes in state operating procedures, he said the program may save taxpayers more than $10 million by June 30, 1972.

He listed savings achieved by Bureau of the Budget employees, trained in sophisticated industrial engineering techniques, in three departments as $1,204,500 in public aid; $70,000 in finance; $130,000 in registration and education, plus $25,000 in the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and $56,400 in the Industrial Commission. McCarter said the $170,000 administrative cost of the program is a 9-to-1 savings-to-cost ratio, which he expects to increase to 15-to-1.

The Illinois Commission on Urban Area Government last week endorsed the main package of the proposed new state constitution after a membership poll showed an overwhelming majority favored endorsement. The endorsement did not include the four separate articles, on which the commission felt it should not take a position.

Concerning the local government Article, previously endorsed by the executive committee, Chairman Robert E. Merriam said the article "is a major improvement over the present condition of local government in Illinois. The potential benefit to the public is great."

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has named Helen D. (Mrs. Alfred W.) Schmid of Glen Ellyn assistant director of revenue. Ogilvie said the appointment of a woman to the revenue post is the first in any state in nearly 30 years. Research has revealed only two such prior appointments. They were in Louisiana and New York in the '30s.

Mrs. Schmid is a DuPage County supervisor and the only woman director of the Illinois Public not abandon him or cease respiration efforts until trained hands take over from you.

Remember, says the Lake County Safety Commission, when you're dealing with high-voltage wires you must not depend on rubber or plastic boots, raincoats or ordinary gloves to protect you from shock. They're designed to protect you from the rain, not from being electrocuted.

Broken Wire Unpredictable

"When a wire breaks or comes loose from the pole and falls to the ground, there's no predicting how it will act. If it could be depended upon to crackle, snap and throw sparks all around it would be less dangerous because it would give plenty of unmistakable warning to any passerby. But often, lacking a good connection with the ground, the wire lies quietly and gives no indication of its deadly potential. Any person who touches it may provide a path to ground, in which case the person's body would become a part of the deadly circuit."

If you see a broken wire, assume it is "hot" and can kill you, says the Lake County Safety Commission. Protect the scene by posting a guard to keep passersby at least 100 feet away, then call police immediately and give them the exact location of the trouble. The police will relay the information to the power company.

As a result of a storm there may be downed wires at several locations and power companies sometimes have to borrow emergency crews from another company. This takes time. While repair work is going on, keep curious children away from all dangerous areas. If it has been raining, see that children stay far away—moisture on the ground increases the danger.

Be especially careful in any area where there are metal fences, guardrails or highway dividers. A "hot" wire can send a charge for miles, even along an old barbed wire fence.

If a wire has fallen onto a vehicle with occupants, call to them to stay inside until professional help arrives. Occupants of a rubber-tired vehicle usually are effectively insulated. But if a driver or passenger should step out with only one foot on the ground, electrocution is possible.

If it is absolutely necessary to get out the vehicle (in case of fire, for example, have each person leap from it without touching it again. This will prevent a potential victim from forming a circuit to ground with his body. If a wire is draped across a victim, it must be removed immediately to save his life—but not at the risk of another life in a foolhardy attempt at a rescue. Nonconductors—of dry wood, plastic or rubber hose, dry rope or similar material—can sometimes be used to allow a rescuer to push or pull the wire away without great risk.

Never try to cut fallen wires. This takes skill and special equipment. If a victim is pulled free and is unconscious from electric shock, emergency mouth-to-mouth resuscitation must be started immediately. Just as with a drowning victim, every second counts. If possible, keep the victim warm with blankets and do

Franchise Tax Total: $313,049

Franchise taxes and fees totaling $313,049.56 were collected by the Corporation Division in October, according to figures released by Secretary of State John W. Lewis.

The Division has collected $21,645,109.49 in the first 10 months of 1970, a decrease of $4,980,029.88 from the $26,629,529.37 collected for the same period of 1969.

Secretary Lewis explained that the decrease is a result of a reduction in the minimum franchise tax from $100.00 to $25.00, which went into effect on July 1, 1970.

Certificates of Incorporation or authority issued to new Illinois and out-of-state corporations totaled 1,198 in October.

During the first 10 months of 1970, 11,068 new corporations were licensed in Illinois. The total is 664 less than the 11,731 new corporations for the same period of 1969. However, the 1970 total represents an increase of 663 over the number of new corporations in the first 10 months of 1968.

WAYS TO DO YOUR OWN THING

You have probably never stood in front of a solid block of marble and whistled "There's a giant in there, waiting to be chipped out!" The great Italian sculptor Michelangelo did—but this was many years after he had carved his first object—out of wood and purely as a "hobby." Many of today's great artists—and people who just appreciate art—first experienced the joys of creativity through a hobby craft.

Have you ever seen a woodcut reproduction? There is nothing exactly like it. It is a great art form, but even a beginner can make a respectable showing. The design, first cut into a block of solid material and then transferred by laying the inked block against the material to receive the impression—a sheet of paper or of cloth—shows up in white against a solid background of ink. You can make hundreds of beautiful and distinctive birthday and Christmas cards from a single woodcut block.

Model building is another creative hobby that requires precision cutting tools. You can buy the model parts all ready to cut out or you can build each model from the ground up—from detailed plans. The general rule about model building is "the more you put into it, the more you get out." The models can be built for dazzling good looks alone (you can build whole sets of brightly painted Mississippi steamboats, Ferrari racing cars, or antique locomotives, for instance)—or for action-model airplanes that really fly and miniature sailboats that really sail, and complete in regattas. Model building is great for building father-son teamwork, and often captures the interest of the whole family, with everybody pitching in.

Wood carving or "whittling" can produce some wonderful objects for Christmas gifts for members of the family—personal gifts that will always be treasured. Boxes and cheese boards—decorated with designs cut into the wood and coated with several layers of protective varnish—also make delightful gifts. These materials and precision cutting knives and tools are available at your local hobby and art shops.

You can do all these things and lots more with the help of X-acto Set Number 86, or any other X-acto Set. There are also X-acto Kits for leathercraft, and many other exciting crafts. Go down to your local hobby shop or art supply store, look around, ask questions, and pick up a few books or booklets. If you haven't discovered yet what your creative "thing" is, you might find it there.

Hobbies stimulate thought, Remember, the Wilbur and Orville Wright brothers began as kite builders in Dayton, Ohio. They progressed by degrees to the construction of gliders big enough to carry a man, and then to your know what. Their "hobby" created an industry.

Ecology Groups May Be Working Against Selves

Fear that ecologically oriented groups may actually be working against themselves, the public and the environment they seek to protect was expressed today by an executive of the American Forest Institute.

Insects and disease, unchecked in the name of ecology, are becoming a serious threat to parks and wilderness areas, according to George C. Cheek, executive vice president of AFI.

Unless corrective measures are taken, the nation's future timber supply also could be reduced, according to Cheek.

American Forest Institute is a non-profit association of forest products companies and others with an interest in conserving the nation's timber-producing forest land. It is best known for its sponsorship of the tree farm program, and has members in every state.

Cheek said some of the nation's largest insect infestations are within the boundaries of recreation areas, including Yellowstone National Park, and that two other potentially large areas are being considered for inclusion in new reserves.

Control measures applied on commercial timberlands are banned in park areas, according to Cheek, on the grounds that interference with natural processes would destroy the character of the forest.

"The result is the destruction of the forest itself," he said. "This is a natural phenomenon, but the natural process of regeneration takes hundreds of years. Minor intervention by professional foresters can preserve the character of a forest indefinitely."

Cheek said presently affected areas include over 100,000 acres in Yellowstone park, about 100,000 acres in the Boundary Waters Canoe area in Minnesota, and "miles of insect-killed lodgepole pine" in the Chamberlain basin of the Idaho Primitive area.

In the Minam river area, under consideration for addition to the Eagle Cap wilderness in Oregon, current losses of trees to insects is 9-10,000 per year, Cheek said.

"Even more serious are reports from foresters that a 15,000-acre insect infestation exists within the proposed Voyageurs National Park in Minnesota," Cheek said.

A spruce budworm infestation on the Kabetogama peninsula will defoliate the white spruce and balsam fir that give the area its heavy forest cover, Cheek said, unless checked.

A similar outbreak in 1958 and 1959 was successfully controlled on nearby land by a cooperative government-industry spraying program. As a national park, there would be no attempt at control.

Cheek said insects currently account for the loss of 8.8 billion board feet of timber per year just in the federally owned national forests of the West, according to government figures. This is roughly equivalent to the total timber harvest from these lands.

Cheek said it was inconsistent to permit insects to ravage forests unchecked, when fires are suppressed.

"The disaster is the same, whether produced by insects or fire," he said. "Insects just do their work more quietly 'and more slowly.'"

In Washington state, where 192,000 acres of forest were lost in fires during 1970's hot summer, rivers will be drastically affected by loss of watershed, communities are in danger of flooding, and even a portion of the apple crop is threatened by changes of water flow patterns.

"This is in addition to the direct losses in terms of wildlife, recreation land, timber, and the jobs that depend on the forests," Cheek said.

"People seem to understand that protection is needed for the trees in their own yards, or on their own blocks. They remove caterpillar tents, cut off dead limbs, and spray dangerous insects."

"In a forest far away, they seem to feel the principles are different. The result is hundreds of square miles of dead, ugly forest that breeds insects and disease, and then, when the trees fall, an impassable tinderbox that explodes into fires that use the diseased area as a springboard to the healthy forest."

Girls Offered Bids As Senate Pages

Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) today announced that he is accepting applications for girl pages to serve in the next session of the Senate.

"We've been talking about bringing about change, and I thought we should start right here in the Senate," the Senator said. "I look forward to being able to appoint a girl page to the Senate in the early part of the next legislative session. It will provide an excellent opportunity for her to participate actively in the legislative process and view first hand the workings of the Congress."

There has never been a girl page in the Senate. Percy said objections to having girl pages included the long hours and hard work. Some say girls are too frail to carry heavy, bulky materials around the Capitol and the Senate Office Buildings. "I'm not convinced by this argument, if girls today are competent to do karate, I think they ought to be able to carry the Congressional Record," he said.

"I know we have many girls in Illinois who are most qualified and would gain valuable and interesting experience as a United States Senate Page, and I hope many will apply," Senator Percy said.

Percy explained that the pages must be between the ages of 14 and 16 and have completed the eighth grade of school. No dormitory facilities are provided for pages, therefore, a relative or friend living in Washington would be most helpful for those girls applying. Each page's day begins at 6:30 in the morning when he goes to the Capitol Page School. The page stays in class until 9:45 a.m. After class is dismissed, a Senate Page reports to the cloakroom to which he is assigned. The morning duties are to file the Congressional Record and Calendar of Business for each day on the Senator's desks, together with bills, resolutions, documents and reports that may be before the Senate. Although the work is varied, the pages serve principally as messengers, carrying between the Senate Chamber and Senators' offices or committees.

Any girl between the ages of 14 and 16 and interested in becoming a senate page are asked to write Senator Percy in care of the Senate Office Building in Washington, D. C. 20510.

Loading and unloading children at school can be dangerous warns the Chicago Motor Club-AAA. Children opening car doors and exiting on the traffic side of the street can become targets for, or cause of, accidents. Always pick-up and unload children on the school side of the street.

Now that school is open, motorists are advised that it is especially important to slow down and observe with care stopped public and private school buses. Law requires drivers to stop for a stopped school bus. Caution is advised in the area of stopped public buses as well. Some children may cross carelessly in front of public buses.

Soph Five Lose Three In Classic

Antioch's Sophomore basketball team competed in the Turkey Classic Tournament at Mundelein and lost all three games.

The scores were: Antioch 40, Barrington 41. Antioch 28, Mundelein 5. Antioch 42, Elgin Larkin 61.

In the Barrington game Antioch and Barrington both played rather sloppy basketball with many turnovers. Antioch led most of the way but couldn't seem to score when it was needed. Fred Popp led Antioch with 20 points. Glen Amundsen pulled down 12 rebounds.

Against Mundelein Antioch held its own the first quarter before the bigger, better shooting Mustangs pulled away. Antioch shot a very poor 21. Popp again led the scoring with 9 points.

In the final game against Elgin Larkin Antioch not only had poor shooting from the field, but also missed 18 free throws. Popp was once again top scorer with 10 points.

Centuries ago games of many kinds captured the imaginations of the Vikings.

Displaying great "Norse power," these hearty people participated in a ball game in which a hard ball, knott, and a bat, knattle, were, like baseball, part of a pitched battle. The games were played either on ground or on ice.

Wrestling and fencing were popular sports. Northernmen competed on skates made of the bones of animals. Many other Norse games and sports were similar to our own, but they had some about which moderns know little.

Norwegian historians tell of a sport in which a man would walk on our blades while a boat was being rowed. This ear-splitting feat required much practice.

Then there was a game in which players leaped into armor... another pastime where two or three swords were thrown in the air and caught. To play with three swords at once without injuring oneself required great skill but was par for the Norse.

Many Americans today, aged 8 to adult, are in the same boat as were the Vikings, with a new game known as Swords and Shields, adapted from a diversion that has stood the test of time. Part of the great "Norse" code, is a strategy game that originated several hundred years ago, and history books tell of the Vikings playing it on wooden laths for relaxation.

It's fun to play and win as an attacking sword player and then win the next game against the same opponent as the defending shield player. As popular with adults as with children, the Milton Bradley game gives each player an equal chance at the start. It contains one playing board, nine shields and 16 swords.

Though winning is particularly gratifying, there are no "Thor" losers either.

Coast Guard Eyes Fox Lake Office

Officers of the Ninth Coast Guard District's five Boating Safety Detachments discussed opening a new office at Fox Lake, during their Annual Team Conference, which closed Thursday at Fox Lake.

The safety meeting is scheduled each year following the Great Lakes' busy recreational boating season to discuss past problems and define next year's publicity objectives.

The conference at Fox Lake familiarized the Team's top officers with the "Fox Chain of Lakes", where a majority of the Team's boating safety efforts are exposed to the public. By opening an office there, the Coast Guardsmen will be better able to aid boaters with additional safety information and services.

Coast Guard Commander Kenneth Albritton, Chief of the Ninth District's Boating Safety Branch, headed the three-day safety meeting.

Program Tests Appliances

Gas appliances are being tortured, according to reports from Northern Illinois Gas Company appliance experts. They must withstand rigors that include high winds, heavy weights, exhaustive wear, chemical tests, pushing and twisting, and having their temperature taken.

This describes the natural gas industry's appliance testing program which is symbolized by a certification seal—a blue star on a white ground. It is one of the oldest voluntary self-policing efforts ever made by a large industry and one of the best, say the NI-Gas experts.

Gas home appliances are designed to assure safe and efficient performance. Manufacturers voluntarily submit their appliances to the American Gas Association Laboratories for testing. Tests, from simple inspection to torture, are performed to determine the safety and reasonable operating efficiency of the appliance when properly installed and in use. When the appliance passes the required tests, it is authorized to bear the Blue Star seal. To earn continued certification, the manufacturer's product must pass a comprehensive inspection at the factory each year.

The Blue Star seal has nothing to do with the price of an appliance, say the NI-Gas appliance specialists. Many of the lowest-price gas appliances being sold today have met all standards and bear the seal.

When shopping for a gas home appliance, it's a good idea to ask the salesman if the appliance has the Blue Star seal. However, say the NI-Gas people, no matter how much safety is built into any appliance or other mechanical time-and-work saver, there's the element of risk. Anything that has moving parts, and any equipment that uses any kind of fuel or energy, must be handled with some care and respect. Remember, even the best-made hammer can shatter a thumb.

Natural Gas Helps Clean Up Pollution

Want to push a button and see how natural gas helps clean up air pollution?

You'll be able to do it by activating a smokestack afterburner powered by natural gas in the new Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company exhibit opening next June at the Museum of Science and Industry.

You'll also be able to operate devices which generate heat, light and electricity from gas, and visit the "theatre of the future" to learn how research now in progress in the natural gas industry will improve the quality of your life in the decades ahead.

At a ceremony at the Museum, Peoples Gas announced the awarding of a contract in excess of a quarter of a million dollars for construction of the exhibit. The contractor, General Exhibits and Displays, Inc., Chicago, also designed the new exhibit. At the announcement in the office of Daniel M. McMaster, museum president, were Ward C. McCallister, president of The Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company, Willard J. Ball, vice president, The Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company, and Stanley Fairweather, president of General Exhibits.

"The Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company is delighted to provide this new exhibit because it comes at a time when the natural gas industry's research and development effort is proceeding at an accelerating pace," McCallister said. "Our engineers are testing new ways to put gas to work to improve the quality of every American's life, and many of these new applications are totally different from the traditional uses of gas—from today's kitchen stove or water heater or clothes dryer, for example.

"The new exhibit will give us the opportunity to show the public for the first time—many of these advanced devices which will one day be in common use throughout the nation. The exhibit also will relate the history of natural gas and explain how it is brought from the ground and delivered to Chicagoans today, but its major emphasis will be on what today's innovations in gas technology will mean to mankind in the coming years."

Fairweather noted that the exhibit will be "a forerunner of future teaching methods: a total environment which will help a person retain more information than he would retain from being taught in a normal schoolroom setting.

"The mood created within the exhibit space," he explained, "will produce a memorable experience which will motivate students to seek out even more information from their books and other traditional sources following their visit to the Museum. A tour of this exhibit will be, in a real sense, a 'mind-opening' experience which will have tremendous educational value, not only for young students, but for everyone who visits the exhibit."

McMaster stressed the major advances in gas technology which the new exhibit will portray.

"The exhibit utilizes new visitor involvement techniques, effective in communicating an understanding of the scientific and technological development of an industry attuned to contemporary needs, an industry which is making a major contribution in minimizing environmental pollution," he said.

"In 1950, on the occasion of its 100th birthday anniversary, The Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company unveiled its present exhibit at the Museum. Now this new exhibit has been planned in an era of much greater technological and social sophistication. This exhibit is a major addition to the Museum and represents a substantial contribution toward public education and understanding of our advanced technology."

McClory Backs Clean Election Legislation

Congressman Robert McClory (R-Ill.) has testified before the House District of Columbia Committee urged prompt enactment of legislation to require full financial disclosure by campaign committees operating in the District of Columbia.

According to Congressman McClory, the existing loophole in the Federal Corrupt Practices Act permits independent committees to operate in the District of Columbia without any requirement to report or account for campaign receipts and expenditures.

Congressman McClory declared: "The existing law permits extremist groups and privately financed campaign committees to operate out of the District of Columbia without public knowledge. Candidates throughout the nation have been recipients of benefits from these secret campaign funds. In urging the House District Committee to report my bill favorably, it is my hope that another step toward fair and clean elections can be taken."

The McClory bill is co-sponsored by more than 45 other Members of the House of Representatives including both Democrats and Republicans. The bill's chief sponsor is Congressman Gilbert Gude (R-Md.).

New Career Programs Recommended

Trustees and administrators of the College of Lake County recently met with representatives of local businesses, industries, and public service agencies to consider recommendations for new career programs.

The meeting was called to review the recommendations of Citizens' Advisory Committees which had studied the need for two-year curricula.

The Citizens' Committees had completed a study of the needs in five occupational fields. Based on their study of manpower needs, it was recommended to the College that, in addition to the 22 programs now offered in the Junior College, the College should consider developing courses of study in the following areas: Ornamental horticulture, merchandising management, production control, medical laboratory technology, physical therapy assisting, radiologic assisting, industrial engineering technology, tool and die design, child care, and environmental control.

Dr. Richard Erzen, President of the College, expressed appreciation to the Advisory Committee for the work they had done in identifying areas of high priority need. The recommendations of the committee will be taken under full consideration by the College administration and trustees.

The next step, according to James E. Seitz, Assistant Dean for Career Programs, "will be to establish new committees in the areas represented to determine the feasibility of offering the course work in the next year or two."

The recommendations were made by the following Committee members in attendance: Fred Armistage, Abbott Laboratories; Dr. William Bartholomew, O.M.C.; William Boerner, Dexter Corporation; Mrs. Jean Borendame, Abbott Laboratories; John Bostater, Johnson Motors; Dr. William Bourke, Downey Hospital; John Clarke, Outboard Marine Corporation; Mrs. Minnie Hartfield, Downey Hospital; Donald Isleib, I.M.C.; Mr. William Osborn, Anchor Coupling Company; and Al Pickus, Pickus Construction.

Also in attendance were College administrators as follows: Dr. Richard Erzen, President; Dr. R. Ernest Dear, Dean of Instruction; Dr. S. Robert Hoekstra, Administrative Assistant to the President; Dr. Russell O. Bloyer, Dean of Student Services; Dr. Harold Garner, Assistant to the Dean of Instruction; and Mr. James Seitz, Assistant Dean for Career Programs. College trustees in attendance were: Mr. Walter A. Kroll, Mr. T. E. Paxton, and Mrs. Thelma Sandee.

Other members of the General Advisory Committee, not in attendance at the meeting are: Louis Brydges, James Chaloupka, Great Lakes; John Crutcher, Insurance and Real Estate; Caesar Fontana, Fontana Press; Alvin Heppner, Heppner Manufacturing Company; Mrs. Elizabeth Hewitt, Department of Public Aid; Richard Kennedy, Waukegan News-Sun; Robert MacGruder, Waukegan Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Walter McCallum, Dentist; Ed Palo, Hough; William Schroeder, Lakeland Publishers; Ed Schroeder, Johnson Motors; William Schwandt, Realtor; Mrs. Mildred Toney, Illinois Bell Telephone Company; Norman H.
